The alumni of the normal school met at the school Saturday afternoon and decided upon their plan of procedure for the annual banquet and reception to the graduating class in June. It was decided to have an exceptional fine time, not a dress affair, but a genuine reunion and good time for all the graduates. It will be held the night after the graduating exercises.

Messrs. Garfield Goodwin and Clarence Paddock spent Sunday with Chas. A. Stuffer at the latter's home, one mile north of Glendale.

The middle-year girls of the normal entertained themselves Friday evening with an "old spinster" party, at which each one gave a sorrowful tale of how she "got left" and had to breast the storms of life without a better half.

Those present were Misses Mary Millett, Orpha Standage, Alice Carnew, Grace Godwin, Rachel Brady, Lulu Brady, Lelia Hicks, Stella Ross, Florence Ford, Leona Hauoli, Emma King, Grace Saylor and May Saylor.

About sixty cow punchers, bringing in something like 4,000 head of cattle, have come in from the upper Salt river country the past few days. The boys say that by May 7 over one hundred of the cowboys of that country will have come to the valley largely for the purpose of bringing about 7,000 cattle for the plentiful valley feed and to see President McKinley.

A TEMPERANCE DIVERSION

Men Made to Drink Beer Rather Than Rotten Whisky.

There were other attractions than the Major Cole meetings in Phoenix yesterday. By the aid of a few democratic leaders, the attention of the worldly minded was diverted to the vicinity of the Salari property, on South Seventh avenue, near the S. F. & P. freight depot, where a huge barbecue was in progress during the greater part of the day and where the Christianizing influence of Anheuser-Busch beer went straight to men's souls, which, as has been said before, are reached through their stomachs, and where the golden light of democracy was pointed out as the great cure for all ills with which the body politic is eternally afflicted.

There is a large Mexican settlement in that part of town, and about the only place where any official record of their birth, nativity or anything else can be found is in the great register, thanks to the diligent and tireless work of the democratic registration officials. It was noised abroad that this important constituency was becoming sick at heart and discouraged with maintaining a residence in the Third ward till after Tuesday when no visible means of support was offered, and the managers thought that the saving grace of Anheuser-Busch would do much toward satisfying them. It can easily be seen therefore that the gentlemen promoting the enterprise were not only astute politicians, but were considerate of their fellow men from a humanitarian standpoint.

There was much speculation on the street as to who could have been so thoughtful and at such a crisis. Mr. Dunlap was mentioned, but it is a well known fact that Mr. Dunlap does not dance unnecessarily, and whoever got up this big barbecue and baile certainly would not have suggested a dance unless he could take part in it. It was hinted that Joe Busch might have had something to do with it, as the invitation of Anheuser-Busch would have a tendency to keep the name of Busch uppermost in the minds of voters till election day. But the discussion with reference to all these gentlemen ceased when an old war horse, who spoke with wisdom that could come only from experience, suggested the name of that immaculate reformer, Joseph L. B. Alexander.

"Reformer?" said one. "Do you call it reform to get a lot of Mexicans drunk on Sunday? Do you call it reform to desert the Sabbath, the day of feasting and dancing? Do you call it reform to bunch men and inoculate them wholesale with the virus of the serpent that lurks in the cup?"

"Yes, that's just what I call it," said the man who had been in the world long enough to look below the surface of things. "Didn't Joe Alexander work the biggest kind of reform here last fall? Didn't he head a moral crusade that jerked the people out from under several republicans and saved the grand old democratic party? Isn't it better for Joe to get all his friends drunk on beer than it is to allow them to stray off into by and forbidden paths and fill themselves up on rotten whisky and unripe wine? And as for dancing on Sunday I never heard any man say that was in conflict with Joe Alexander's religion and nothing can conflict with his kind of politics. Then, there is the barbecue. Some of them fellows we've got down in the Third ward to my certain knowledge haven't had a square meal since we found homes for them. When it comes to reform I believe we should be just as kind to our fellowmen as we can, and if we find homes for them we are in duty bound to see that they have something to eat. They might have on our hands or apply to the republicans for help, and then 'we'd be in a fix. As for the sin of drinking beer, you know we can't drive the drink habit out of the community in one fell swoop, but we can regulate vice and I think beer is a long step in the right direction. Yes, there can be no doubt that it was a reform movement, and I should expect to find no one but a reformer at the head of it."

The serious part of all this business is that some time after midnight those who had participated in the sin of activities grew turbulent and noisy and on account of a threatened disturbance of the peace the officers were sent for about 1:30 o'clock.

GOOD ADVICE.

The most miserable beings in the world are those suffering from Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint. More than seventy-five per cent of the people in the United States are afflicted with these two diseases, and their effects, such as Sour Stomach, Sick Headache, Habitual Constipation, Palpitation of the Heart, Heartburn, Waterbrash, Gnawing and Burning Pains at the Pit of the Stomach, Yellow Skin, Coated Tongue and Disagreeable Taste in the Mouth, Coming up of Food after Eating Low Spirits, etc. Go to your Druggist and get a bottle of August Flower for 75 cents. To assist him he has secured the services of Miss Zada Taylor, contralto of the leading choir of Los Angeles, that of the First Congregational church, who possesses a voice of great power and purity, very sympathetic and true. She has a grand, unaffected manner of singing, in keeping with her handsome face and figure and commanding presence.

Miss Kate Condit, the daintiest of accompanists, is the third member of the company. One understands why she is so fine an accompanist when one knows that besides playing the piano well she is an excellent organist and a most enjoyable singer.

HE REPORTED OFF

Why a Copper Queen Miner Didn't Go to Work.

On Monday evening when A. J. Price, a young miner in the employ of the Copper Queen Mining company for a considerable time, went to the mine to go on shift for the night, he found waiting him a letter from his father in Sonora, informing him of the sale for $20,000 (gold) of a property owned by him jointly with his father, and requesting his presence that the matter be finally closed. The Biesbee Review is able to state that the report that the young man threw the ball of lightning was intended for his midnight lunch, over the dump and walked away, is absolutely false. He is not built that way, but on a far more sensible basis. Yet he did not go on shift, he merely reported off and returned home. Yesterday's train carried him on his way to the Oposura district via Naco, the mining claim lying about sixty miles southeast from Naco.

The property was discovered and located by Price and his father about four years ago, when they were on a prospecting trip. It is even yet but little developed, because of the inability pecuniarily, of the owners to do so, beyond a limited extent. The Prices tried to sell it here for a comparatively small sum, over two years ago, but meanwhile the son has been working as a miner and being a sober, steady young fellow and blessed with good health, has been unable to furnish his father with the necessary means to develop the property in a small way. Price has some times spoken of the property to associates here and expressed confidence in its proving to be valuable, yet he seemed surprised at the sale now for the sum named. The elder Price has been in Biesbee but the Review could not learn of his having resided here at any period. The younger Price was not especially well known, even among his fellow miners, but among his comparatively few associates he was well liked and highly spoken of.

AMUSEMENTS

THE PAUL JENNISON CONCERT

At the Opera House Wednesday Evening, May 8.

Mr. Paul Jennison, "America's greatest violinist," was born in St. Paul, Minn. Began his first musical studies on the violin, was soon a leading violinist in the orchestras of the Twin Cities; attended the state university, then studied architecture, but the inclination for a musical career becoming irresistible, he took up the 'cello, went to Boston, placed himself in the hands of Mr. Fritz Gliese, that great master of the 'cello, and practiced so enthusiastically that in only two years he had developed under Gliese's special care, such an extent that Mr. Thomas Ryan, founder and director of the world famous Mendelssohn Quintet club, after once hearing him play, engaged him on the spot as solo 'cellist of his club. At the close of a very successful season ('90-'91), wherein he was hailed by the press of the country as the first of American 'cellists, he refused a very substantial increase of salary in order to broaden his musicianship and general culture by a residence in Europe. Entering the conservatory in Leipzig founded by Mendelssohn, he won the appreciation of Herr Julius Klengel, the greatest technical expert of the instrument, who not only showed him marked attention and many favors, but pronounced him a 'cellistic genius. In Berlin he enjoyed the inestimable privilege of close contact with Joachim and Hausmann, the 'cellist of the Joachim quartet, receiving many benefits and kindnesses at their hands. Since then he has played with the Thomas, Damrosch and Boston orchestras and in quartets with Listemann, Schradieck, Mannes, Marum and others.

He now offers himself to the consideration of the American public in a concert company which he has carefully prepared to suit the critical taste of his countrymen, both as regards music and personnel.

To assist him he has secured the services of Miss Zada Taylor, contralto of the leading choir of Los Angeles, that of the First Congregational church, who possesses a voice of great power and purity, very sympathetic and true.
